What does VEEC stand for?

VEEC stands for Victorian Energy Efficiency Certificates, certificates created by accredited providers for eligible activities under the Victorian Energy Upgrades scheme.

What articles are listed on the Northmore Gordon VEEC tag page?

The page lists two items: 'Australian Certificate Markets – July 2026 Update' (dated August 3, 2026) and 'VEEC prices have soared – Will they stay high?' (dated February 12, 2025).

Who creates VEECs and under what scheme?

VEECs are created by accredited providers for eligible activities under Victoria's Victorian Energy Upgrades scheme.

Does meeting a technically sensible upgrade automatically make it eligible for VEEC creation?

No. Certificate creation depends on whether an activity meets the particular scheme and method requirements—the specific activity, premises, equipment and scheme conditions must be satisfied, not just a technically sensible upgrade.

Should VEECs be compared directly with other certificates like ESCs, STCs, or ACCUs?

No. VEECs belong to their own programme with distinct rules and specifications, and should not be compared directly with other environmental certificates as if they were identical units of value or environmental benefit.

What project-based methods are available under Victorian Energy Upgrades related to VEECs?

Two main project-based methods are available: measurement and verification, which uses pre- and post-upgrade energy information, and benchmark rating, which uses NABERS ratings.

Where can I find Victorian Energy Efficiency Certificates information on the Northmore Gordon site?

Victorian Energy Efficiency Certificates (VEECs) are referenced under the Certificates section, linked via /certificates/#victorian-energy-efficiency-certificates-veecs, and related to the Victorian Energy Upgrades government scheme at /government-schemes/#victorian-energy-upgrade-veu.
